Scholarship on the Mediterranean Region and Its Influence*

VOL. 24, NO. I, 2016

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY PRESS

The logo for Mediterranean Studies features the letters 'MS' in a large, elegant, grey script font. The 'M' and 'S' are connected, with the 'S' having a long, flowing tail that extends to the right. Below the 'MS' is a horizontal line that is black on top and grey on the bottom. The word 'MEDITERRANEAN STUDIES' is written in a white, serif, all-caps font across the black portion of the line.

Contributors

Güven Dinç is an assistant professor in the Department of History, Akdeniz University (Mediterranean University) in Antalya, Turkey. He is also vice dean of the Faculty of Letters at Akdeniz University. He received his PhD in history from Akdeniz University in 2010. He teaches Ottoman Turkish, paleography, and Ottoman history resources. He is also a researcher at the Research Institute for Mediterranean Civilizations at Akdeniz University. His areas of interest include Cyprus history and Antalya city history. His main book publication is Geçmişten Günümüze Antalya Ticaret Ve Sanayi Odası (ATSO Press, 2012). His recent articles include “Kıbrıs Saray Tercümanlığı Kurumu (1779–1816),” XVIth Turkish Congress of History (2015): 423–37, “Cyprus Leper Farm in the British Period (1878–1955),” Journal of International Social Research 8.39 (2015): 292–309, and “Cyprus Court Interpreters during the Ottoman Period,” Mediterranean Journal of Humanities 2.2 (2012): 45–55.

Tziona Grossmark is a professor in the Faculty of Humanities and Social Studies, Tel Hai College, Upper Galilee, Israel. She chaired the Department of Multidisciplinary Studies from 1999 to 2003, and served as dean of the faculty from 2006 to 2010. She teaches Jewish history of the Roman and Byzantine periods. Her research interests focus on daily life during the late Roman and Byzantine periods. Currently, she is focusing on daily life as represented in Talmudic literature and travelers’ stories in the Talmud. She is the author of Travel Narratives in Rabbinic Literature: Voyages to Imaginary Realms (Edwin Mellen Press, 2010).

Marie A. Kelleher is professor of medieval history at California State University, Long Beach. She completed her PhD in 2003 at the University of Kansas. Her research interests include medieval Spain and the Mediterranean world, gender, medieval law, and social history. Her first book, The Measure of Woman: Law and Female Identity in the Crown of Aragon, was published by the University of Pennsylvania Press in 2010 and received the American Historical Association’s Premio del Rey for best book in early Iberian history. She is currently at work on a book-length study of the city of Barcelona as seen through the lens of the city's 1333 famine.

Vasileios Pappas is adjunct lecturer at University of Thessaly (Department of History, Archeology and Social Anthropology). He received his PhD in Latin philology in 2010, from Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, with a dissertation titled The Latin Knowledge of Demetrius Daniel Philipides († 1832): The Translations of Trogus and Florus. He conducted postdoctoral research at Ionian University in Corfu. He has published several articles in Greek and international journals in the areas of Latin love elegy, Roman historiography, the poetry of late antiquity, and the Latin style of post-Byzantine scholars. His book, The Strategems of Sextus Julius Frontinus: Introduction, Translation, and Commentary, will be published in 2016 (in Greek).

Judy H. Park received her PhD at Cornell University before joining the English Department at Loyola Marymount University as assistant professor of Renaissance literature. Her current research explores the relationship between dramatic and political forms and the emergence of republican and imperialist thought in English and Dutch literary and political culture. Her essays on these topics appear in the journals Comparative Drama 49 (2015) and Dutch Crossing: Journal of Low Countries Studies 20 (2016). She is currently completing a book, Staging Republic and Empire: Politics of Drama, 1603-1660, a study of seventeenth-century Stuart and Interregnum drama that explores the contradictory forces of republicanism and empire in a range of dramatic forms, such as the masque, tragicomedy, and closet drama.
